DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US Patent 3,279,093 to Dutton.

3. Dutton presents an assembly with features and characteristics which are the same as those disclosed in the instant application. The Dutton assembly for blowing liquids from a vehicle includes a support plenum for distributing air, a nozzle system 68 for directing air toward the top of the vehicle, an air delivery conduit which interconnects the plenum and the nozzle system, an actuator 28 for moving the nozzle system between operating positions whereby the nozzle system may be moved up or down to accommodate the changing longitudinal configuration of the vehicle, and a rotary drive 72 for rotating the nozzle system to efficiently direct air against the contour of the vehicle. Dutton furthermore teaches a series of sensors 200, 130, 113, 202, 278 for detecting the presence, contour, and rear of the vehicle, and a controller, processor, and timer responsive to the sensors and capable of being programmed to control air distribution, the actuator and the nozzle system. Note column 6, line 35- column 8, line 25 and Figures 1 and 15. Dutton does not teach each sensor detecting from above. However, as several of the sensors, such as 130 and 113, do sense from above the vehicle, it is clear that above positioned sensors are well known in the art to effectively sense vehicle characteristics. Therefore, modifying several of the sensors taught by Dutton to sense from above instead of from below would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art. Regarding the specific functions of the controller, processor, and timer that are claimed, the function language is given little patentable weight beyond the recitation of sufficient structure to carry out the function. As the controller, processor, and timer of Dutton would be capable of carrying out the claimed functions, it is determined that that dryer of Dutton meets the claimed structure limitations.

Conclusion

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Day et al. and Sauter teach similar car drying apparatus.
